SECTION A (READING :20 marks)

1 Read the passage given below and answer the questions/complete the statements that follow : (1x8) 8

A headache is usually caused due to spinal misalignment of the head due to poor posture. Sleeping on the stomach with the head turned to one side and bending over position for a long time makes it worse.

It is known that any shift in the level of body hormones and chemicals, certain foods and drinks, and environmental stress can also trigger it. Modern life includes computers, driving, hand-held devices, and watching TV; all create severe stress on our neck and shoulders. While we know we should take constant breaks from these activities, we "forget!"

Holding our arms out in front of us and/or cocking our necks to see the screen properly, we put pressure on our neck and shoulders that our body wasn't built for. This sets us up for muscle and joint strain and pain.

In migraine headaches (one-handed headaches) the pain is usually on one side of the head and may be accompanied by nausea, vomiting, irritability and bright spots and flashes of light. This headache is made worse by activity, especially bending. The throbbing pain in the head gets worse by noise and light. Certain triggers for migraines may be chocolate, caffeine, smoking or MSU in certain food items.

The pain may last from 8 to 24 hours and there may be a hangover for two to three days. Migraines are often preceded by an 'aura-changes in sight and sensations. There is usually a family history of migraine.

Work on your posture and ergonomics. Be sure that when you work at your computer, for instance, you are practicing good ergonomics - customize the keyboard and monitor height to your needs. Our teachers and parents were right. It will hurt at first if you are improving bad posture, but the effort will be well worth it.

- (a) What are the various reasons that cause headaches?
- (b) If one suffers from a headache that is accompanied by nausea or flashes of light, one could be suffering from _____.
- (c) The two things that can make migraine even worse are _____.
- (d) A migraine can last for _____.
- (e) Another word for 'usually' is _____.
- (f) Name foods which can act as trigger for migraines.
- (g) What precaution should be taken while working at computers?
- (h) What advice is generally given by parents and teachers with regard to body posture?

2 Read the passage given below carefully. 12

(1) From birth through age six, the family unit crafts a child's sense of identity. Parents and siblings affect a child's likes, dislikes, tastes in clothing, food and music and, perhaps most importantly, values. Once children enter school, they form connections to the larger group of their peers. This group brings new ideas and experience. Peer pressure occurs when a student's actions are influenced by this group. The "pressure" happens when peers suggest or insist on actions that stray from the child's normal behaviour and values. Though the phrase is often used negatively, peer pressure can sometimes cause positive outcomes.

- (2) Peer pressure leads to some disturbing negative behaviour in school children. About 30 percent of students are offered drugs by their friends in middle or high school. Just over 75 percent of high school students have tried alcohol. In a survey conducted by Survelum Public Data Bank, students felt pressured by their peers between 35 and 49 percent of the time. Psychiatrists attribute the power of peer pressure to a child's growing desire to fit into a group-particularly if the group has a social status within the school.
- (3) Thankfully, peer pressure can also be positive. For example, wanting to join an athletic group of friends may compel an otherwise sedentary student to try out for the soccer team. Other examples of positive peer pressure include students encouraging a classmate to run for school president, or friends suggesting that a talented peer try out for a choir solo.
- (4) Researchers differ over whether parents or a student's peers have more influence over that student's behaviour. In a study published in The Journal of Primary Prevention, researchers concluded that when parents tolerate drug use, teens are more likely to use illicit drugs. They also noted that when parents closely supervise their teens, the students were less likely to have friends who used drugs. Conversely, in her book "The Nurture Assumption: Why children Turn Out the Way They Do," Judith Rich Harris argues that peers have more influence than parents in shaping children's behaviour.

(1) Answer the following questions briefly :(2x4)

- (a) What are the changes brought about in a child by the parents and siblings?
(b) What are the negative effects of 'peer pressure'?
(c) How can peer pressure be also positive in the life of a student?
